I was thrown from my horse 6 or 7 years ago, and suffered a severe wound of the side, which was aggravated by disordered kidneys. Rieven months ago I was attacked with pneumonia and blacker disease, deposits of brick dust and albumen being discernable by the naked eye. I was confined to the house for six months, and was unable to cross the floor without assistance. My physician did me no good. Having read in my religious weeklies of the wonderful cures by your Safe Kidney and Liver Cure, and being advised to use it by Captain Graham, I did so, and am once more able to walk the streets. My pains have left me, and I believe if I had used the remedy a year ago I should then also have been cured.

Almost Buried Alive.

Josephine Ryman, a fair-baired, blac-: yed young weman is just recovering from a remarkable illness at the home of her sister, Mre. Browe, in Evansville, Itd. Her parents died some years ago, and Josephine went to work in St. James, a little village near by. One Saturday night las: winter she went to singing school. She had not been in her seat long when she felt a strange sensation about the tead, accompasied by pains in the back. She arose to her feet, as it to start out of church, when she feil in a dead faint, and was carried home. Her friends at first thought that the attack was but a mere fainting spell, and the usual restoratives were applied, but the girl continued to lie as if diad. Sanday came and wint, but still there was no change. The body bec me colder and oilder, the eyes were open and staring, the lips were apart, there was no parceptible onlee, and every indication pointed to death. Physicians pronounced life ex inot. The priest was sent for to administer the last rites and the weeping sisters and friends of the family prepared to bid Josephine the last farewell. The offin was ord red, basy figgers began to prepurs the white clothes in which to bury the corpse, and, in fact, every preparation was made for the final scene. Tous passed Monday. On the evening of that day there was a alight change in the at-pearance of the body, which gave the startled watchers a faint hope that the gil lay in a trance, and that this was but death's counter feir. The body lay on its back, with arms folded, just as the attendants had placed it There was not the least percept ble breathing; the eyes still had that stony, unmeaning giz: the fact was as pallid as white merble; but the 85 King street, (under Sarepta Hell,) iciness of real death was wanting. The feet ALEXABDRIA, VIRGINIA. and limbs were not warm, but they did not have that chilly touch that is a sure accompanimeet of actual dissintion. There was sufficient doubt in the minds of those in attendance to Warrant caution, and another day and night

On Wednesday, or the fourth day after the girl was first scricken down, the priest was again sent for. After ori-ically examining the oses and consulting with the physician, he said:
"It is a trance. She may come to herself, but it will be but momentary. When she r.lapses all will be over. She can't live." Accordingly the funeral was set for the next day. I magine the feelings of horror which possessed this gul when it is known that she was cognizant of every word that was spoken in that room, and could see the forms of her friends and watchers teld by herse f. She said to me yesterday:

O . sir it was horrible. As I lay there on my bic's stretched out on the boards, with my arme crossed and feet tied tegether, with light ed cardles about my head, and could see my sisters and neighbors come and peer into my face, it was awful. I heard every word speken. My body, limbs at d arms were as cold as ic . I thought f the agony of being buried alive, of being nailed in a offin and lowered in the ground. I tried to make some noise, or more a little, to let them know that I wis slive, bu it was imposible. I saw my sisters come in one by one and lock into my face. Poor Josie, she's gone. Their tears dropped on my heir, and their kisses were warm to my lips. As they turned to leave me, it to med es if I must m. ke an iff rt to attract their attention, if only by moving my eyelids Bat I coudu's do it I felt like screaming, I tried to, but I couldn't move a mu-ole.

' Finally, when all was ready, when the through was finished, and all had left the room but two or three, some one said: 'Ain't you going to out ber hair off ?' My hair wis doce un io long braids, and fell down my back; 'Yes, said my sister, 'we'll cut it off now.' Then they got the scissors and came up to ms. While one of them took hold of my head and turned it to one side, the one with the seissors began cuting. I could feel the cold steel on my neck I realized that this was about the last thirg hay'd do before putting me is the office. The woman began to oip, and in a second or two one long braid of hair was taken off and laid aside. My head was then turced the other way to allow them to get at the other braid, tu: this was not touched. Thank God! something it my condition or some movement, I don't know what it wis, caused my sister to scream, and I was saved. The scissors dropped to the floor with a foud noise, the woman jumped bock nearly scared to death, and I sat up. Yeu should have seen that house a little waile after hat, I thought everybidy had gone co z7 Venie's al v. !, 'Venie's slive!' The whole neighborhood came in hing in as soon as they heard of it, and for say, ral days there was noth-

ug talked about but me. My tolks thought I didn't know what had been going on. Little they thought that every word spoken in that room was heard and understood by me. They tried to keep every body from re farring to the fact that my shroud was bourht the c. iff 1 ordered, the funeral arranged. They made an excuse, too, for part of my hair being cut off. They told me the reason of it was that a placter had been put on the bick of my neck and my har got so tangled in it that it had to be cut away. I didn't say anything. One dy my little brother said to ma, Venie, you was an't be burie lest Thursday, and they cut your bair off. He never imagined that I knew more about that than he did. The recollection o those terrible days and nights will never leave me. I proy to God that I may never be called upon to pass through it again. I would rather
